

Chapter 16

Meaningful Home Activities: Parents and Children Learning Together

Our goal is to engage families in joyful learning together. We do not recommend sending home isolated “dittoed” sheets – or mere busywork. Rather, we hope to encourage parents to build language, literacy and a love of learning through activities that enrich family communication and togetherness. At the deepest level, our desire is to set in motion a family commitment to their child’s education (for at least the next 13 years!). Some families may need extra support and encouragement to consider evening and weekend time as an opportunity to invest in their children’s future.

Notice how each bumble bee is uniquely different.
